THANKSGIVING DAY

I saw her gowned in filmay lace With violets on her breast. She looked so fair I almost then My love for her confessed; But there is many a soft blue eye And cheek that shames the rose, So still I dallied with my heart,

Nor hastened to propose. I met her in the afternoon, A vision all in blue. And nearly put the question there Upon the avenne; But still some faint misgiving cheeked The words upon my lipa;

Thanksgiving Day I took a walk Beneath the branches bare. And at her door a ameil of spice Was wafted on the air.

I merely bowed in silence o'er

Her dainty fingertips.

I peeped within. A snowy cap Was on her curls of gold, A gingham apron neatly bound Her waist of slender mould.

Beneath her white and skilfui hands A noble turkey lay; I watched ber dress it, and my doubts Like mist dissolved away. Exhaling savory whiffs of thyme. And plnmp with golden fat, She popped it in the waiting range,

Entranced, I saw her leave the pics And rnn in eager baste With gravy rich, from time to time Its juicy sides to baste, And when, a symphony in brown, She dished that bird divine, I boldly stepped across the sill

And asked her to be mine.

My heart went pit-a-pat.

SHUPS DESERTED

LITTLE DOING ABOUT THE RAILROAD TODAY.

The railroad shops here presented a deserted appearance this morning when a reporter made his regular rounds. There was not the usual rush and hnrry but instead everything was quiet except the occasional about of some cinder pit laboarer or the pnff of aome switch engine moving oars about the vards.

The wood working, machine and hlacksmith shops, were idle and the great doors closed. Only the round honse exhibited any activity and this was among the hostlers preparing the engines for the road. The mechanics are all off today enjoying a day of rest and thanksgiving but will resurn to work tomorrow and again the great shops will take on life and will be moving as neuai.

THE ATHLETICS AND POETRY

From the New York Snn.

Mr. Henry L. Boltwood, an Evanston high school principal, has been startling the western educators by a fierce attack on college athleties. Apparently he is an old fogy, who clings to outworn actions of the functions of aniversities. He wars against madern improvements. 1 e is blind to the softening effect of learning on undergradnate manners. He discharges his bile upon "the rowdyism, valgarity and theft of college men" and insulis the Olympian calm of the intercollegiate competitions:

"A cellege athintic contest is too often made the excuse for gambling, drankenness, thaft, and often robbery, plundering restaurants, defrauding railreads, interfering with the rights of the traveling public, breaking up theaters and mebbing lecturers."

It is useless to argue with a hot box. Intercollegiate athletics are justly prized as one of the nonlest of the learned professions; and fine furies of youthful and trinmph are regarded indulgently by all philosophers. Mr. Boltwood is prosale. He lacks smagination. If for no other reason than their service to literature, college athletics deserve all the arder which is given to them. They are the name of American pretry. From them come the grandest chants and highest hearted hymns of the new century. Many | recognized great truths and formulated of these masterpieces are known to our readers.

The collection which we offer to them today comes from a new fount of song, the Washburn university at Tozeka. A NEW IDEA

And the Interesting Story of Its Development Jo

dred persons in the United States who are familiar with the intereating history of the development of the system which has come to be designated as the "Buttle Creek Idea," though no longer represented in Battle Creek alone, brauches having sprung up In many places. while a knowledge of the principles of this remarkable system has become quite widely diffused throughout the civilized world. The "Battle Creek Idea" is not a fad nor a mushroom growth. It is a actentific system which traces the main roots of its origin far back into the centuries. It is not the product of n single brain, but of hundreds and thousands of tireless workers and thinkers who have garnered the choicest fruits of generations of experience and have collated the results of centuries of scientific research.

A volume might be filled with the Interesting story of the development of this wonderful work which has recently been made conspicuous by the hurning of the main hulldings of the Battle Creek Sanltarium last year and the recent dedication of the magnificent new building which has been erected to take the place of the hurned structures, but we have room only for a few choice bits of this interesting bigtory.

"The Brook Farm Experiment." Half a century ago there gathered on a little farm not far from New Haven, Conn., the most remarkable coterie of men and women who have ever been associated in any community in modern times. George Ripley, the most famons Unitarian minister of New Eugland at that period, was the founder of the community. The practical realization of the Pythagorian philosophy was the central idea of the Brook Farm experiment. Among the 140 members of the community, most of whom afterward became eminent in various prefessions and callings, were Emeraon, the phllosopher; Bronson Alcott, the transcendentalist; Thoreau, the interpreter of nature; Margaret Fuller, the educational reformer; Charles Dana, the founder of the New York Sun, and Hawthorne, one of the greatest literary lights of the century. The Brook Farm experiment failed for lack of financial management, but the ideals survived.

The Wonderful Discovery of a Silesian Peacant.

A little less than 100 years age a fourteen-year-old peasant boy, who was barely able to read and had not been taught lo write, while engaged in cutting wood on a mountain near his home, observed a wounded deer bathing its injured leg in one of the numerous springs which abound in that particular region. Day after day the deer came and bathed the damaged parts until entirely bealed of its injury. Priesanitz soon atter suffered a severe accident from which the physicians who were consulted declared he could not recover. He Iried the deer's remedy, applying water by means of wet cloths placed over the injured parts. and in a few weeks was quite restored to health. way of applying water by means of batha, douches, packa, compresses and various other methods. Before he was twenty he had become fumous. furing the first half of the inst century the little village of Gracfenberg, where he lived, was througed with invalids from all over the world, including many play sicians and notable people of high sta tion, government officials, prince, lard barons, unarquises, who sought relief by the employment of water skillfudy of piled by attendants a tang under the supervision of this prophet of a nec method in therap ntles.

Institutions known as "water cures rapidly sprang up in Prance, German, England and America, and for twen y five or thirty years prospered grentl Fullure came at inst because of a lack of knowledge of scientific princi les no the employment of crude and empirical

The Natural Method of Cure. 'The "water cure" was the forerunner of something better. It embodied the great principle that "pature heals." Something more than thirty years ago a small group of men organized in Battle Creek a work which later grew into what is now known as the Battle Creek Sanltarium. The principles recognized by Pythagoras and those who have followed his teachings during the last 2,000 years or more were embodied in this movement, together with others wrought out by scientific investigators and observers. The work prespered from the start, and soon after its incorporation was placed upon a purely phllanthropic basis as a self supporting charitable institution, and has since remained as such.

The "linttle Creek iden." In 1876 the enterprise came to be known as the Battle Creek Sanltarinm The scope was enlarged so as to include not only hydrotherapy or water treatment, but all norts of electrical applications, the Swedish system of gymnastics for both the sick and well and various means for the application of light and for the employment of all known natural curative agents.

Later, research laboratories were added for studying cases of disease and conducting original researches for the purpose of perfecting methods and developing improvements in dietetics and all that pertuins to the preservation of health and the cure of disease.

A Mecca For the Sick. Gradually, as a result of these observations and researches, an elaborate and carefully perfected system, based upon sound acientific principles, was developed and became widely known an the "Battle Creek Method" or the Battle Creek Idea." Battle Creek thus became a Mecca for health seekers, who thronged the place to increasing numbers summer and winter until the number of visitors reached an aggregate of more than 50,000, with an annual total of 6,000 or 7,000.

A Disnetrone Fire. Then came the fire of Feb. 18, 1902, which destroyed the two main buildlags of the institution and started a wave of ayunpathy which sprend throughout the whole civilized world. The work was not extinguished by the fire, however, and the completion of a better lailding at an expense of about $500,000 marked a new era in medical progress, presenting to the world what may be justly regarded as a model saultarium structure. Here for the first time were gathered together in one place and under one management appliances for the application of all known rational and natural curativa ageucles, the final perfection of which is now embodied in the great new structure which was dedicated with imposing ceremonies on the Sist day of May of the present year in the pres ence of many thousands of persons. A formal invitation was sent by the governor of the state acting with other prominent state officials to all leading state and national officials in the United States. Letters and telegrams expressing congratulation and regret at lnability to attend were received from the president of the United States, two members of his cabinet. many governors of states, senators and members of congress and other officials in all parts of the country.

A Magnificent Temple of Health. Some idea of the spleudid institution which was thus publicly set apart to the service of God and humanity muy be gained from the following brief deecription: The huilding is over 550 feet, or more than a tenth of a mile, in length and seven stories in height, including the basement. There are three large four atory hulldings counected with the main building by a circular corridor. The length of these added to that of the main part makes the aggregate length of the building nearly a quarter of a mile. The building is thoroughly fireproof, the construction bein of brick, stone, Iron and cement. The floors are of artificial stone covered with marble mosaic. The total floor space is over seven nores. There are five elevators. The arrangements for bntis are most elaborate, as also appileations of electricity, itght, heat and all physiological or antural methods in addition to ordinary medical and surgical means.

The Battle Creek San'tarinm la well known and recognized by the medical profession everywhere throughout the civilized world. "The liattle Creek dea" and the Battle Creek Institution have always been kept free from fadand quackish or empirical methods. The work of the institution is thoroughly acientific. It is strictly unsectarism and undenominational, being simply a liberal Christian enterprise. All the doctors, nurses and managers connected with the institution are persons wim have devoted their lives to mission ary and philanthropic work and who are full of enthusiasm for the promoilon of the principles of simple, natural living and the employment of natural methods in the cure of disease as well as in the maintenance of health.

City Medical Missions. The great training school for misslouery nurses sends out each year a little army of trained men and women filled with zeal and enthusiasm to preach the doctrine of almpie natural living and to act the part of Good Sa marltans wherever there is found any one in need of the skilled service which they are prepared to render to rich and poor.

Medical Missions have been estab lished in Chleago and in various other cities in different parts of the world.

Branch establishments, conducted by physicians and nurses trained at the central institution, are located in many parts of the United States and in for elgn countries. Numerous unauthor ized and unrellable concerns professing to represent the same methods and ideaa have spring up in the vicinity of Battle Creek and eisewhere, as bige pens to every successful and merito rlous enterprise. "Modern Eloquence" as a Guide to Success

EVERY young man wants to succeed. How? Obviously the way to learn is a study the methods of men who have succeeded. Guites to success are many. What do they say? Be honest. Tell the truth. Work hard, Save money. Do $20 worth of work for wages of $5. Such advice is good, no doubt, as far as it goes,—but is not something more needed? these methods sione make Ilittis, and Bok, and REED, and CARNEGIE, and CURTIS, successful? Young men are not fools. They see that there is a secret of success, and more the would be successful, The secret lies in controlling the minds of men. 11ow to make others believe you, trust you, and do what you wisk,—this is what you must learn. To be sure, will learn it but those who also work hard and tell the truth. These come first, -but they are not all.

As a guide to the highest success, "MODERN ELOQUENCE" has no rival. It h a splendid series of object lessons by masters in the att of influencing mes's minds. And the success aimed at is far more than mere money success. Fame, power, honer, the gratitude and love of generations to come, these are the rewards which have red to such efforts the men whose words are gathered in these ten rich volumes. STATE AGENTS MEET

A Preliminary Meeting to Organize Insurance Asso.

Lonisville Agents Start the Move-Final Meeting Dec. 15.

A meeting of the state agents of the lifo insurance companies represented in Lonisville, is expected to result in the organization of a state life underwriters' association, of which all the life inenrance men in the state will be asked to become members.

The meeting was called by Sidney Sladden, of the Pacific Mutual, to allow all of the general agents to get acquainted. "There has been much bit ter feeling among competing state agents here in the past, and it has been largely due to the fact that they did not know each other," sald Mr. Sladden. "I believe that yesterday is there should not be the best of fellowship between the state agents." I was enided to hold another meeting December 15, at which the quession of organizing a state association of life underwriters will be further discussed. The agents present at the meeting yesterday elected the follow- & Co. ing officers to serve until the association is formally organized: President, John O. Davidson, Aetna Life Insprance company; vice president, Sidney Sladden, Pacific Mutuai Life Insurance company; secretary, William Colgan, State Mutual Insurance company.

Was in Torture all the Time. Had Pains in His Back.

Dear Sir:-Some six months ago a friend recommended to me your justly celebrated Kidney and Backache Cure. I was at that time suffering intensely from pains in my back.

My work daily aggravated the complaint and I was in torture all the time. After taking two bottles of your medicine I was relieved and two more completely cured me. I feel like a new man now, thanks to your Remedy, and unhesitatingly recommend it to those suffering Sincerely yours, as I was.

Gwen was greatly distressed. "But your poor horse," abe said; eleverly changing her ground. "He is quite thred out."

The Old Timer now joined carnestly in urging him to stay till the storm was paat. So, with a final look at the stream, the PBot turned toward the

Of course I knew what would hap-Before the evening was over he had saptured the household. The moment he appeared with dry things on he ran to the organ, that had stood for ten years closed and slient, opened it and began to play. As he played and ment of the crowda that pressed sang song after song the Old Timer's eyes began to glisten under his abaggy brows. But when he dropped into the exquisite Irish melody, "Oft In the Stilly Night," the old man drew a bord breath and greaned out to me:

"It was her mother's song," and from that time the l'thet had him fast. It was easy to pass to the old hymn. "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and then the l'liot said simply, "May we have prayers?" He looked at Gwen, but she gazed blankly at him and then at her father.

"What does he way, dad?" It was pitiful to see the old man's face grow slowly red under the deep tan as he said:

'You may, sir. 'There's been noue iere for many years, and the worse for us." He rose slowly, went into the inper room and returned with a Bible.

"It's her mother's," he said in a voice deep with emotion. "I put it in her trunk the day I laid her out yonder nnder the pines." The Pilot, without looking at him, rose and reverently took the book in both his hands and suid gently: "It was a sad day for you, but for He paused. "You did not

"Shall I?" The Old Timer simply nodded and my best days, and the faith of my childhood was not as it had been; but as the Pilo' carried us through those matchless scenes of self forgetting love and service the rapt wonder in the child's face as she listened, the upp in her voice as, now to her father and now to me, she cried, "Is that true, too Is it all true?" made it impossible fo me to hesitate in my answer. That day came and passed, but the story of it is not to be told here.

CHAPTER XI.

GWEN'S CHALLENGE. G WEN was undoubtedly wild aud, as the Sky Pliot said, willful and wicked. Even Bronco Bill and Hi Kendal would say so, without, of course, abating one jot of their admiration for her. For fourteen years she had lived chiefly with wild things. The cattle on the range, wild as deer, the coyotes, the jack rabbits and the timber woives were her mates and her Instructors. From these she learned her wild ways. The rolling prairie of the foothill country was her home. She loved it and all things that moved upon it with passionate love, the only kind she was capable of. And all aummer loug she spent her days riding up and down the range alone or with her father er with Joe or, best of all, with the Duke, her hero and her friend. So she grew on strong, wholesome and self reliant, fearing nothing alive and as untained as a yearling range colt. She was not beautiful. The winds and sun had left her no complexion to speak of, but the glory of her red hair. gold red, with purple abeen, nothing could tarnish. Her eyes, too, deep blue with rims of gray, that flashed with the giint of steel or shone with meitir light as of the stars, accord ing to her mood-those Irish, warm, deep eyes of hers were worth a mau's looking at. Of course, all spoiled her. Ponka and her son Joe groveled in abjectest adoration, while her futher and all who came within touch of her simply did her will. Even the Duke, who loved her better than anything else, yielded lazy, admiring bomage to his Little Princess, and certainly, when she stood straight up, with her proud little gold crowned head thrown back, llashing forth wrath or issning imperious commands, she looked a princess, ail of
